In January, the Conway Historical Society and the Conway Selectmen presented the Boston Post Cane to the town's most senior resident, Flossie Blake, 107 years old. An avid gardener, Blake was known for her African violets. "She had a whole basement full of them," Asked what her secret to longevity was, she said "chocolate and Oil of Olay." The concept of the cane is credited to Edwin A. Grozier, who in 1909 was publisher of the Boston Post. According to the historical society, that August, Grozier forwarded to the board of selectmen in 431 towns in New England a gold-headed ebony cane.

Honoring and Remembering World War One

The loans for this exhibit are starting to trickle in, including medals, newspapers, sheet music, books, photographs and so on. Our plans for exhibits and programs are coming together, but there is still time for you to contribute and get involved. Just give us a call at 447-5551 or 323-3359.

The exhibit will be open in May for school and group tours and then in July during our regular open hours. Call for details.

One hundred years ago this year America entered World War One. This Spring we will host a series of three related programs focusing not on battles, Generals and Military maps, but rather on its meaning for the Conway community both here on the home front and over there in the trenches, fields and forests.

EE Cummings, a summer resident of the area, wrote "The Enormous Room" about his experience during World War One.

Jack Ricker, 2016 graduate of Kennett High School was awarded our student scholarship. Be sure to have any history related seniors you know apply!

Did you know March was named for Mars, the Roman god of war?

The Gibson/Woodbury Charitable Foundation was established in the fall of 1970 to support the work of its founders: Henry D. Gibson, Melvin D. Gibson, Wendell D. Woodbury and Cheryl J. Woodbury. The purpose of the foundation is to preserve the history and traditions of all Mount Washington Valley residents and to promote the growth and development of nonprofit organizations.

Our annual membership program is open to all individuals and organizations. We will accept applications for membership from individuals and organizations within a 12-month period.

The Gibson/Woodbury Charitable Foundation welcomes grant funding requests from nonprofit organizations across the Mount Washington Valley. Grant funding requests should be submitted to the foundation's grant committee. The grant committee will consider all requests for funding from any organization that meets the Internal Revenue Code as a 501(c)(3) charitable organization that is not a for-profit organization.

Each year the foundation receives a large number of grant requests. The board of directors will consider all requests for funding from any organization that meets the Internal Revenue Code as a 501(c)(3) charitable organization that is not a for-profit organization.
